New York!" The noise roused the street for blocks, and soon a dense crowd of 400 or 500 surrounded the bus. The laughter and cheers increased all the way to the Pennsylvania depot. Half a mile away a baker's dozen of dejected mortals, with grips and bat bags, crept into the Baltimore and Ohlo station and sought sectusion in the electing-car. station and sought sections in the sleeping-car. Manager Hanlon was the last to arrive.

The Von Der Horst brothers, who had finally turned over to Mr. Arthur Bell, the authorized Treasurer of the New York team, a check for the amount of the two days' receipts, leaned wearily against a post in the station. Not a word was said by anybody, and when Jersey City was reached, like the Arabs, they silently stole away.

The Wall street contingent of baseball enthusiasts telegraphed Supt. Bell to reserve all the seats in the directors and adjoining boxes this afternoon. The game will be called at 3.3 P. M., but the gates will be opened two hours earlier. President Nick Young, of the League, came over last night from Raltimore and registered at the Fifth Avenue Hotel this morning.

Before leaving Baltimore last night Capt. Ward made strenuous efforts to obtain possession of the Temple Cup and bring it over for the inspection of local entlusiasts, but the proprietor of the clothing-store where the trophy is on exhibition angrily refused to yield to Ward's wishes.

"Oh, well," said the Gotham.te, "I just thought we would save you the express charges for sending it over to New York next week."

The Baltimorean made orange and black remerks, and slammed the door. One of the funniest incidents of the evening was the address of a New York drug house drummer named Combs, delivered to the crowd in the Eutaw House lobby after the game. Mounting the clerk's desk, he said:

"Gentlemen, I have been selling drugs for lifteen years, but never in my experience have I taken such tremendous There was a pause, and then some one asked: "What of it?"

"Why," shouted the drummer, "don't you know this is the sickest town on earth?"

the Eastern Park Game.

(Special to The Evening World.)
EASTERN PARK, BROOKLYN, Oct.

Yale won the toss and took the ball.

Pratt kicked to Yale and Letton returned.
Goodwin made several long runs around Yale's left and right ends, and rushed the ball in five minutes to Yale's three-yard line.

The Yale men were furious, and made a desperate stand, gaining possession of the ball on their two-yard line.
Gillette made five yards for Yale, but failed on the next rush, well stopped by Baldwin.

Yale fumbled, and Crescents got the ball on Yale's three-yard line.

Quill, Fratt and Goodwin failed to gain the necessary five yards and Yale got the ball.
